DIED.

Following the approval yesterday of findings of a referee a decree will be entered in the Supreme Court within tew days divorcing Mrs. Molly Tackaerry Ferguson from Armour Fergusonson of Mrs. Farquhar Ferguson of this city and Huntington, L. I., and a nephew of Philip Armour.

The decree when entered will provide that Mrs. Ferguson receive $5,000 a year allmony and that her former husband file a bond of $10,000 as a guaranty that it ill be paid regularly. Mrs. Ferguson began her suit in July, 1920. Her complaint and all other papers which are on file are sealed.

In approving the report of John I. Adams, referee, Justice McAvoy made the following memorandum: "The referee's conclusions are considered fair and reasonable and I will enter judgment accordingly as to the guilt of the defendant and grant a reasonable sum for the plaintiff's main-

The action was begun while Mr. and Ferguson were living with Mr. Ferguson's mother at her country place, the Monastery, on Huntington harbor, and an order directing that the testimony be heard by a referee was made a month after the filing of the summons. Samuel Untermyer represented the plaintiff.

After having presentiments Schoenberg ruminated upon his past. What a past! How could a man hear to think of it? The composer thought of it in what are called "harmonic planes." This is a new game in music. Virite two themes in different keys, harmonize them chiefly in minor seconds, augmented fourths and minor ninths, score them for two different orchestral choirs and play them simultaneously, and there you are. Let us not linger on Schoenberg's past. It must have been unspeakable.

Schoenberg's past. It must have been unspeakable.

"As for the "Changing Chord," it was a will o' the wisp. There has been nothing but changing chords all the time. A "peripetia" is a sudden turn, especially in a tragedy. Well, this was one. It turned around and around and when it was tired it stopped. All the time it made a fearful noise, worse than the "noises in a swound." According to Dr. Hull, the last number is uitra-modern counterpoint. So let it be, it sounded like the first stanza of that immortal poem which begins—

He is a man of artistic ideals and his conviction that the clavier music of Bach needs continual repetition doubtless was what induced bits, to the continual repetition doubtless was not only the "chromatic fantasia not only the "chromatic fantasia and fugue," but three numbers from the "Well Tempered Clavichord." His interest in the instrument on which he plays must have been responsible for the inclusion in the Bach group of the organ fugue in C minor transcribed by Emile Blanchet.

BOKNAN—

At a special meeting of the board of divotresses of the Ladies Sewing Ecclety of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum the following resolution was unanimusty adopted. In the passing away of Caroline Bookman, a member of our board for overforty-two years and president of the society for twenty-five years, we desire to express our great sorrow at the loss of our dear friend. At all times ready to give of her cheering presence and wise counsel in the work of caring for the criphan children, Caroline Beokman will go down in the annals of Jewish communal service as one of the most glorious figures in its history. She was a dear and loving friend to each member of our wards and an unitring worker in the field of charity, a loving mother and a generous benefactor to the unfortunate who came within her scope. In rain and in the and even when physically disabled she attended the meetings of our Board of Directresses and by her wiedom and devotedness has often helped us over many obstancies. A. M.
TURNURE.—In memory of my dear friend.
George Evans Turnure, Jr., who departed from this world November 30, 1920.

IN MEMORY.

I miss him and mourn him in allence unseen:
I dwell on the memories And Joys that have been.
Though gone and forgotten
By others maybe,
The grave that contains him is secred to me.
By B. R., a devoted friend.
